The course explores technologies that utilize computer vision and artificial intelligence. We will consider the new ways that the world is being visually represented through the eyes of computational technology. We will investigate the emerging context of algorithmic decision-making applied to socio-political issues. We will reflect on and critique the corresponding shifts in ethics, power, and accountability of this new algorithmic gaze and agency.